ABOUT THE THEATER

Bernardsville sits at the very seat of the American Revolution. This quiet historical town is the perfect location to celebrate this uniquely American art form. Motion Pictures.

In 1913, the Bernardsville Cinema opened its cavernous 500 seat theater and has been in continuous operation ever since. Originally named The Columbus Theater, it began as a vaudeville theater. In 1920, silent films replaced vaudeville acts until 1929 when "talkies" came in. In order to keep up with the changing times, the interior of the grand old theater was converted to a triplex theater in the early 1990's, yet there has been little change to the exterior.

In 2020, the 110 year old building celebrated its 100th anniversary as a continuously run motion picture theater and remains one of the very few totally independent theaters with no chain affiliation in operation in the United States.
